Chain of Survival Advanced Cardiovascular Life Support continues to emphasize the Chain of Survival. The Chain of Survival is a sequence of steps or links that, when followed to its completion, increases the likelihood that a victim of a life-threatening event will survive. The adult and pediatric chains of survival are slightly different.

While many nursing homes give good care to our elders, the ability to sue for damages is an important part of any relationship. As part of our elder law practice, we see clients suffer all kinds of untold damages due to nursing home neglect and the ability to sue for damages is an important way to keep the facility answerable for their misconduct.
